CORINNE'S GOLD WATCH

In the Hands of the Government
For Non-Payment of Duty.

A BIRTHDAY PRESENT ATTACHED.

And Evidence is to be Taken in the Matter at Pittsburgh Next Week.
Mrs. Kimball Explains How the
Complications Arose—The Watch
Was a Present From Her Mother.

The peerless Corinne and a fine company gave a very enjoyable and brilliant performance of the burlesque extravaganza, "Hendrick Hudson, or the Discovery of Columbus," at the Opera House last night. The theatre was crowded, and a more appreciative audience has seldom been seen there. Fine as were all the productions ever put on here by Mrs. Kimball, none of them came up to that of last night. The singing was good, the costuming beautiful and in some instances gorgeous, and every feature was nearly perfect of its kind. Corinne's singing and dancing were of course the main features, but Mrs. Kimball has surrounded her with a supporting company every member of which is an artist.

Last night the following Associated Press telegram was received by the INTELLIGENCER:

PITTSBURGH, March 8.—H. L. Christy, of this city, has been appointed to take testimony here which will decide whether Corinne, the actress, has violated the revenue laws and whether she is entitled to retain possession of a gift from Canadian admirers.

Last December when Corinne was playing in Toronto, Canada, she was presented with a beautiful gold watch valued at $1,200. From Toronto she went to Chicago, and while there she sent the watch back to Canada to have it inscribed. Upon its return the Chicago firm through whom it had been sent displayed it in the show window with the inscription that it had been presented to Corinne by her Toronto admirers. A government official saw the watch, and upon investigating found that there had been no duty paid upon it. He thereupon confiscated it and it was to be sold at auction. But Judge Grovecup issued a restraining order to prevent its sale until a hearing could be held in the case. Testimony will be taken here next week.

A reporter called on Mrs. Kimball, the pretty little star's mother and manager, and asked her what she knew about the matter. She said there was some truth in the story, but a great deal more that was not true. The history of the watch, as she told it, ran thus:

Mrs. Kimball herself bought the watch and gave it to Corinne in Toronto as a birthday present. The reporter did not ask what birthday this was, but it was probably her eighteenth. At any rate she is past sixteen, for she celebrated her sixteenth birthday here once.

The watch was bought of Ellis & Co., whom Mrs. Kimball calls "the Tiffany of Canada." It cost $1,200, and was literally covered with diamonds. After Corinne had worn it a few days the catch failed to work and it was returned to Ellis & Co for repairs. They sent it after the company to Chicago, where it arrived December 16. The next morning a United States custom officer called at the hotel and demanded the watch, which was surrendered. It was advertised to be sold February 27, but in the meantime Mrs. Kimball retained Mr. Clyde L. Day, a Chicago lawyer, and he got a restraining order from the United States court at Chicago. The hearing at Pittsburgh next week is merely the taking of depositions to be used in court when the case comes up for trial.

Mrs. Kimball seemed to resent the report that the watch was a gift from "admirers" in Toronto. She said it had her photograph in the back case, and an inscription showing it was a present from her mother on her birthday.

"Of course," said Mrs. Kimball, "Corinne receives many presents, but she never accepts any costly ones. I never allowed her to, and now she is old enough to have common sense enough to refuse them of her own accord."

As Mrs. Kimball tells her story there is, of course, no more reason to pay duty on the watch than if it had been purchased in the United States.

This Seems Premature.

The following outline of a great scheme is from a Cross Creek, Pa., telegram in the Pittsburgh Commercial Gazette:

Much interest is centered in the project of a new electric air line to connect with the Pittsburgh & Carnegie line at McDonald, and with the Wheeling & Wellsburg line at Bethany, W. Va. It will pass through the northern end of Washington county, probably on a line with Cross Creek village and West Midletown.

Come Over on a Steamer.

A correspondent in Benwood sends the INTELLIGENCER this interesting bit of information:

M. and W. Deegan have on exhibition a clock that came over on the "steamer" Mayflower, with Christopher Columbus, in 1492.

A clock that came over in a steamer that wasn't a steamer and that crossed the Atlantic when Columbus had been dead long enough to have been born and buried several more times, is a timepiece that should be placed in the careful guardianship of the West Virginia Historical Society.

LECTURE ON CHINA

Illustrated by Stereopticon Views Was Heard Last Night.

Last night at the First Presbyterian church the lecture room was crowded to hear the lecture on China, with especial attention given to the work of the Christian missionaries in that land. Mr. Alfred Paul read the lecture which was copiously illustrated by stereopticon views, from original photographs taken by the missionaries in China. These views were sent here from the Presbyterian missionary society, together with the printed lecture, which was quite as interesting as the views were life like and curious.

Every phase of life in the vast Chinese empire, almost, was covered by the lecture and views, and an adequate report could only be given in several columns, and would even then lack much without the views. The audience paid the closest attention throughout, and everybody felt amply repaid for coming out on a very disagreeable evening.

Change in the Caldwell-Peterson Concern.

It was reported yesterday that Mr. Frank Caldwell and Mr. Wilson Kelly, jr., had purchased the interest of Messrs. W. F. and B. W. Peterson in the Caldwell & Peterson Manufacturing Company, and would hereafter manage the business. When asked about the report Mr. W. F. Peterson said that such a deal was on foot and might probably be consummated to-day, but so far no final arrangement had been reached.

Transfers Recorded.
